Date :2010-01-01 version 1. Into the 21st century. Chinese society has entered a relatively high crime period. Beijing's public security cases, criminal cases and also showed multiple growth situation. How to understand the flow of population centers in Beijing and the criminal-prone phenomenon Simple view, the increase in criminal behavior Beijing floating population and the increase in the existence of a more obvious correlation, but this conclusion is too simple, does not help the problem of in-depth analysis. This study proposes that, from the perspective of social capital theory, some parts of the city in the wave of rapid urbanization, the original social acquaintance into a new strangers, community members, especially between the flow population, a certain lack of interaction between networks and trust, local social capital decline, the behavior is easy to anomie. This relationship is really set up, which requires more in-depth sociological research. From a sociological point of view of crime, is a long tradition. Early in the 19th century, Western scholars began to try to use the newly emerging social scientific methods to study crime. Sociologists tend to emphasize the history of crime neighborhood, ethics, trust, community cohesion and other social factors on delinquency, the formation of many influential schools of sociological theories of crime and rich community policing ideas and methods, made many reference value of ideas. This gives us the theory of social capital from the perspective of the issue of community policing provides a very strong ideological foundation. Since Bourdieu, Coleman, Putnam and other social scientists made use of social capital theory has many social problems, social capital theory has rapidly developed into a very broad...
